PRESENTATIONS

#1 - Cedar Rapids Transmission - EMF

Mr. Dan Duchesne, General Manager of CRT along with Dr. Michel Plante, expert within the magnetic field accorded Council and the citizens of Cornwall with a very detailed and informed presentation in so far as Electromagnetic Fields and Human Health.

Mr. Duchesne began the presentation by explaining their project scheduled to begin June 2002.

With the replacement of the existing power lines, the conductors will be higher which will effectively reduce the magnetic field. Magnetic fields intensity decreases very rapidly with distance.

The new power line will be relocated closer to the centre of our corridor which again will increase the distance between the new conductors and the edge of the corridor. It will therefore be further away from the schools located between "Aubin & Brookdale" streets, hence less magnetic fields than at present.

Magnetic fields on a power line are proportional to the current circulating in the conductors. If the tension is raised to 230kv vs 120kv at present and the power load remains the same the current will be halved and therefore the magnetic fields will also be halved. Dr. Plante continued to explain the synopsis provided by Environmental Health & Toxicology Units. Over the past 25 years, hundreds of epidemiological and experimental studies have been done to look for possible associations between exposure to electric and/or magnetic fields (EMF) of extremely low frequency and long term adverse health outcomes. There has not been consistent evidence, however that such exposures cause increased risks of human cancers (including adult and childhood leukemias) or neuro behavioral, reproductive or developmental abnormalities.

In Ontario, there are presently no legislated or even recommended specific "safe" distances between schools or homes and the "right-of-way" areas for power transmission lines and towers.

Following an extensive question period from members of Council, it was moved by Councillors André Rivette and Claude Poirier to receive the presentation.
